Great opportunity for investment, both because of its location and because of the well-established rental business. PUNAT, located on the east coast of the Punta ditch, more than three kilometers long and almost two kilometers wide, is considered one of the younger Krk settlements. However, such an opinion is related to the fact that the events of this area only a hundred years ago began to be more systematically monitored and recorded. It used to belong to the town of Krk, and the Vrbnik area stretched almost to Punat. There are traces of population from prehistory, through the Illyrians, to the Greeks and Romans. According to legend, during Roman times there was a bridge over the narrow entrance to Puntarska draga towards the town of Krk. Allegedly, according to various records, the inhabitants of the area of Punat were settled by the princes of Krk, in order to protect the access to the bridge and Puntarska draga. Today, Punat is one of the largest Croatian nautical centers and an island center of olive growing. It is unthinkable to talk about Punat, and at the same time not to mention the islet of Košljun. Because Punat and Košljun have been directed at each other for centuries, the life of the Franciscan friars and Punat is intertwined. Therefore, every visitor must want to visit Košljun, which is made possible by "barkajoli" who keep a 10-minute drive from Punat to Košljun and back. Punat is a small tourist place that primarily offers a break from the hustle and bustle, stress and noise. It is extremely charming, gathered along small narrow streets leading to typical seaside houses with vaults, ballads and taverns. Punat is very proud of the tradition of olive growing: today it will be said of Punat that every family there cultivates its own olive grove and produces its own, very high quality, olive oil. Peace, recreation, spiritual refreshment on Košljun, are the trump cards that Punat invites its visitors. Those who respond do not stop coming!
