Be one step ahead and take advantage of this rare opportunity! Baška Voda is located on the Adriatic coast at the foot of the Biokovo mountain. The first traces of settlements in this area date back to the prehistoric era, so Baška Voda has a long history, which is visible through the numerous cultural sights located in the place. It grew from a small fishing village into a tourist mecca and the administrative center of the municipality. It is known for its beaches and clean sea, as well as typical Mediterranean architecture and the spirit of a small town, which it managed to keep despite the development of tourism. Today, Baška Voda is a place with over 2,000 permanent residents, whose number almost doubles in the summer, in the height of the tourist season. It is located on the central part of the Croatian coast of the Adriatic Sea, in central Dalmatia, 48 km south of Split, on the western part of the Makarska coast, at the foot of the Biokovo massif (43° 21' north latitude and 16° 57' east longitude). Once a settlement of farmers and fishermen, merchants and sailors, Baška Voda has grown into a modern tourist destination with all the amenities and characteristics of a small Mediterranean town.
